Audience Thrilled - Again!

CONCERT GREAT

The Regional Symphonic Band, under the direction of John Pandolfi, played to a large, appreciative audience at the Old Rochester Regional High School's auditorium on Sunday, December 8th.

The colorful "An American in Paris" and "Selections from Porgy and Bess" filled the hall with the distinctive melody of George Gershwin for the light side of the program and was greatly enjoyed.

The "Dance Band", as always, stirred the assembly with the full throated sound of the big band. The versatility of these musicians is so wonderfully displayed, as they shift from the symphonic format to the free improvization of the swing band. The sound and rhythm is there just as it was in the 40's. This display of talent is always received with the appreciation that is deserves.

Jack Norwood, the big band vocalist, is a former Mattapoisett resident. He sang well. The sound system at this point, unfortunately, failed to operate properly so the effect was not as good as was possible.

Dan Serpico narrated the show, giving the background of the music and providing the continuity that is so vital to the varied program that the Symphonic Band provides.

Once again, the Symphonic Band has provided a glittering concert. We may count ourselves fortunate to have this gifted group under such an able director as John Pandolfi.

DONATE FLAGS

Mrs. Dean Doran has donated a large American flag to the town of Mattapoisett to be flown at Shipyard Park when the flag pole is reinstalled. The Florence Eastman Post, American Legion has also donated a flag for Shipyard Park and one for the Mattapoisett Town Beach. Both gifts are in response to the Selectmen's request to the townspeople and they are very grateful for them.

CLINICAL NURSERY TEACHER SPEAKS

Miss Cheryl Jones, teacher at the Community Clinical Nursery in Wareham, was the guest speaker at a meeting of Parents and Friends of Handicapped and Retarded Children held at the home of Mrs. Lester Texeira, Park Street, Mattapoisett. Miss Jones, who was introduced by Mrs. Richard Threlfall, president, conducts this class under the State Department of Mental Health.

The class, which is held from 9 to 11:30 A.M. in the East Wareham Methodist Church, is for mentally retarded children, ages 3 to 7 years. There are presently 5 students, however Miss Jones stated, "there is room for 12 students and I feel there are more children eligible to attend if parents will call me at the church for further information".

A typical day includes an hour for free play; the learning of shapes, colors and structures; physical activity, such as climbing stairs and doing somersaults; pronouncing words; fun activity, such as making jello and pudding; 20 minutes of music appreciation or quiet play; and exercise period with a punching bag or tricycle riding. A mid-morning snack helps to break up the morning.

The terminology used 15 or 20 years ago in referring to the retarded consisted of phrases such as moron, idiot and imbecile which are now used in a derogatory manner. New terms applicable now are trainable and educable. Miss Jones noted that often a child diagnosed as mongoloid is hard to classify as there is a wide range in capability from a normal IQ to one needing institutional care.

Brain damaged children can often function in some other area or can be trained to repattern their functions by making another part of the brain take over. The dyslexia problem was discussed as a learning difficulty involving seeing and transferring the thought to understanding and expressing.

Another part of Miss Jones' other duties is working outside school hours with younger children or ones too severely handicapped to attend class. Included in her full schedule is the work she does in Pocasset at the Barnstable County Hospital where classes are held for autistic children. The problem of these children is their inability to relate with other people. Most are entirely different from one another, thus making it necessary to have a 1 to 1 teacher and pupil relationship. There is an observation booth in this center which permits parents and doctors to observe the child's behavior.

Future outlook for these, and other handicapped children, find some go to special classes, some to regular classes and some have to receive institutional care. Miss Jones remarked, "rather than the child adjusting to the world, she felt the world must learn to adjust to the children. There are many jobs the mentally retarded can do. They must be accepted and become an important part of society."

The Tower of Strength

"HISTORY OF FORT PHOENIX"
by Donald R. Bernard
Part V

It is said that when privateering was in full swing up and down the Atlantic coast, Massachusetts had about 600 privateers. Dartmouth was a very busy harbor for these activities. Many prizes were brought in and their cargos unloaded. This annoyed the British War Lords no end. New London, Connecticut also indulged in the same profitable business of privateering. The British Commander, Sir Henry Clinton, and his staff, decreed that New London pay for her crimes against the crown hoping that this example would discourage other coastal towns from engaging in this sort of plunder. A great fleet was amassed and, under the command of Rear Admiral Gambier, set sail for New London. This port was probably the largest supplier and outfitter of privateers. Upon arrival, the British marauders poured forth such devastation on the town that heavy clouds of smoke could be seen for miles and miles. Then, the British fleet anchored for a considerable length of time. The British staff was kept well informed by loyal Tories of the activities in Dartmouth. General Clinton decided to wait until more prize ships and stores were gathered there before he struck.

Meanwhile, back in Dartmouth, expecting a naval assault, the residents wisely appointed a committee of safety to look after the welfare of the people. Notices were posted throughout the town, warning of the impending danger. They urged that all goods and valuables, along with stores and merchandise not needed for subsistence, be moved into the interior to a place of safety. Many smaller valuables were buried or lowered into wells or hidden in other secret spots. Needless to say, the people of the area were panic stricken. Only a few months before, on June 16, 1778, prominent men of Dartmouth had expressed concern to the General Court of their concern regarding attack. As a result of this, Colonel Craft was ordered to Dartmouth with 50 men and four field pieces to act under the orders of Colonel "Judge" Edward Pope.

Fort Phoenix of Fairhaven Village was manned and ready, under the command of Captain Timothy Ingraham. Under him, Lieutenant Daniel Foster, four non-commissioned officers and thirty-two privates formed a total of 32 men. The Fort boasted eleven heavy cannon. Some time previous to the raid, a light battery of about 80 men were sent to Clark's Point to help in the defense of Dartmouth. Unfortunately, the whole battery was ordered to Howland's Ferry (now the Stone Bridge in Tiverton, Rhode Island). Just a week before the raid at Bedford, a similar raid had been made upon Fall River, Massachusetts, and this would account for the few men in the area at the time of the raid at Bedford. Orders were given sending all able bodied men to Howland's Ferry which left Fort Phoenix with 38 men. The company of men at Clark's Point was emplaced behind a mud bunker. A single cannon was detached to the 80 defenders there. They were commanded by a heroic Lieutenant William Gordon and James Metcalf. The outlook for this handful of untrained men was a bleak one. They faced a well trained and fully equipped army of about 4,000 men. With high ideals and love of country in their hearts, this small, gallant group prepared to give their lives for their young country.

Finally, in New London, the orders went from General Sir Henry Clinton to General Charles Grey and the famous "Lunnin" fleet, as they later were called, made ready to get underway.

UNEXPECTED VISITOR

This colorful chicken hawk startled Center School children as it plunged through a hole in the glass block of the cafeteria and took a turn around the room. It flew to a canvas covered post in the corner of the room and stopped for a breather. Joe Bauer, caretaker, captured the bird in a bucket. A cage was brought down to transfer him to. The hawk was kept during lunch time at the cafeteria, so that the children could inspect him. Finally, he was turned loose - presumably a much wiser bird after his day in school.
